The committee met on Tuesday, October 28, 2008, at 11:00 a.m. in Room 210 Strong Hall. The following were present: Banwart, Blackmore, Bradley, Burright, Crosby, Cudd, Dickey, Earnhart, Hayes, Kuczera, Ledom, Madden, Manning, McNeley, Mielke, Mukherjee, Roberts, Rudolph, Tucker

MINUTES  A motion was made and seconded to approve the October 14, 2008 minutes of Committee on Undergraduate Studies & Advising with the following correction: ANTH 320/LING 320 and ANTH 321/LING 321 courses listed for approval were sent back to the subcommittee. The motion was approved unanimously.

CHAIR’S REPORT  Professor Madden reserved the Chair’s report for discussion of the new Bachelor of General Studies degree under Old Business.

DEAN’S REPORT  Associate Dean Cudd reserved the Dean’s report for discussion of the new Bachelor of General Studies degree under Old Business.

CLA&S STUDENT ACADEMIC SERVICES REPORT  Dr. Kim McNeley provided input from the Committee on Graduate Studies (CGS) regarding the University Incomplete Policy currently under review by the University Academic Procedure and Policy Committee (AP&P). CGS endorsed the previous CUSA feedback but also recommended that a student’s petition for extended time must include the support of the instructor of the course. Both CUSA and CGS feedback will be forwarded to CAC and provided to the University Academic Policy and Procedures Committee.

SUBCOMMITTEE CHAIR REPORTS

A. ADVISING & AWARDS – No Report.

B. CURRICULAR CHANGES/DEGREE REQUIREMENTS—

C. ACADEMIC STANDARDS – No Report.

OLD BUSINESS

The discussion of the proposed Track 2 of the Bachelor of General Studies Degree (BGS) was continued from the previous CUSA meeting. The attached draft was provided to summarize the discussions from the previous CUSA meeting. This draft addressed the previous concern of the insufficient global/world component to this degree by including a World Culture requirement of 4 courses (proposed as any 4 courses in foreign language, linguistics, world religions, or foreign culture).
Dr. McNeley informed the committee that in the 1980’s College requirements included a similar World Civilization and Culture requirement. This coding still exists and approximately 300 courses with the “W” designation are offered next term. While this approach would require the Curricular Changes Subcommittee to approve each course meeting the requirement, this option would allow an opportunity for students meet the requirements from a broader number of departments/disciplines.

Further discussion included:
Number of Principal Courses to Ensure Depth and Breadth of Study
Donna Tucker raised the concern that if the number of principal courses was reduced there would be many electives without any specification. She proposed an increase in electives from each division; Humanities, Natural Sciences & Mathematics, and Social & Behavioral Sciences, beyond the Principal Course requirements to ensure a true General Studies Track.

Transfer Student Issues
A good option for transfer students with an Associate’s degree and a number of credits in certain areas. Dr. McNeley expressed concern that transfer students experience difficulty meeting the current Principal Course requirements due their specific nature. Professor Earnhart suggested that it would help the transfer students to require more non-principal courses across the Humanities, Natural Sciences & Mathematics, and Social & Behavioral Sciences categories.

High Number of Elective Credits
Concerns were expressed by many members for the need to specify a certain number of credits in each of the three divisions instead of just stating 67 elective credits. The general consensus of the Committee was to allow no more than 16 credits or 4 courses in any one department, requiring a distribution across the Humanities, Natural Sciences & Mathematics, and Social & Behavioral Sciences categories.

Need for a Foreign Language Requirement
Professor Dickey moved to change the World Culture requirement to include two courses of a foreign language and have the Culture component met by the Non-Western Culture course. This change would reduce requirements by two hours. Professor Manning expressed concerns about staffing and budget cuts. She communicated that Spanish, in some universities, is not considered a foreign language and first-year Spanish does not satisfy the language requirement, only second-year Spanish courses would fulfill language requirements.

Professor Madden described one of the rationales for this General Studies degree as the online course offering and asked if it was possible to do an online foreign language course offering. Currently very few foreign languages courses are available through KUCE.

Professor Madden moved to carry the BGS discussion over to the next Committee session.

DEAN’S REPORT ON THE BGS:
Associate Dean Cudd indicated that Dean Steinmetz has said the BGS we now have is not really a general studies degree. He also stated that he will support new advisors for this purpose if needed.

NEW BUSINESS
Dr. McNeley opened the discussion with proposed changes to the Academic Misconduct Policy:

1. Adoption of the definition of academic misconduct appearing in the University Senate Rules and Regulations with the addition of “the offering of gratuities and favors in exchange for grade”.
2. Addition of the following procedural requirements: cases alleging dishonesty in research must be immediately communicated to Research and Integrity; cases alleging sexual harassment must be communicated immediately to the Human Resources Department.
3. Change to the current deadline for filing charges of academic misconduct. Legal counsel suggests removing the current 10-Day deadline due to the need for additional time to collect information in very complicated cases.

The Committee recommended consulting legal counsel for wider options that would help assure prompt action by the faculty making the charge, but still allow extensions of time for proper collection of evidence.

The meeting adjourned at 12:30 P.M.

New Course

JWSH 311 NARRATIVES OF JEWISH LIFE

DESCRIPTION:
Focuses on the narratives through which Jews made sense of their lives under the impact of the forces of modernity. The last two centuries were a time of profound changes for European Jews, many of whom eventually immigrated to the U.S. Modernity marked the beginning of a more complete acceptance of Jews into the wider society and culture. The goal is to analyze how the imagination of Jewish writers was captured by the changes in social structures such as new educational, residential and occupational opportunities, leading to increased interactions with the gentile society. Changes in cultural norms were also important in this process, such as the development of new ideologies including nationalist, Zionist and secular. The course begins in the "old world," and moves through the 19th century and into the 20th. Students read and discuss literary works based in the shtetl (by Sholem Aleykhem, I.L. Peretz and others), in revolutionary Russia (Isaac Babel, V.Grossman and others), and in America (such as the Sweatshop Poets; Philip Roth and others). We will also look at memoirs and letters written by ordinary Jews. All assigned texts will be in English.

JUSTIFICATION:
My charge in my new position here, as Robert M. Beren Distinguished Professor of Jewish Studies and Director of the Program, is to build our now small program that offers a minor into one that offers a major, and eventually, a graduate program. We have two new faculty members this year, myself and Renee Perelmutter, who is in Slavic Studies and has half of her teaching load in Jewish Studies. We are working (of course over time) to establish a curriculum of courses offered by Jewish Studies. The overarching theme that will unite our program will be a focus on how persons, communities and their material and cultural products, produce narratives that reflect their social and cultural context and shape identities. The course I am proposing for our first Principal Course is the new course Renee is proposing to offer in the Spring semester of this year, i.e, Spring 2009. (We are submitting a concurrent proposal to CUSA to review this course so we can add it to our roster.) Renee’s new course is titled, “Narratives of Jewish Life.” We expect this course to appeal to a variety of students across disciplines because people are often interested in stories and how they shape human experience. This course is focused directly on the themes that will, over time, unite the interdisciplinary faculty of Jewish Studies; therefore I think it is perfect for our first Principles Course.

New Course

JWSH 327 JEWISH SECULAR CULTURE

DESCRIPTION:
By examining the modern concept of Yiddishkeit (Jewishness), this course explores Jewish secularism as a set of modern intellectual, literary, and cultural practices that redefined the relationship between the secular and religious in literature, music, theatre, art, humor, and foodways. This interdisciplinary course draws on theoretical approaches from history, cultural studies, religious studies, folklore, and linguistics to examine the different secularizing cultural practices of the Jews in Central and Eastern Europe, as well as in North America.

JUSTIFICATION:
This course is a core content course (proposed also as a Principal Course) in Jewish Studies, which will count for the Jewish Studies minor and is intended to count towards the future major in Jewish Studies. Moreover, its addition to the curriculum corresponds to the focus in the Jewish Studies minor on Jewish secular identity. This focus on secularization is supported by seed-funding from the Posen Foundation, which has co-funded the hiring of a new faculty member to teach this course.

New Course

JWSH 572  JEWISH FOLKLORE

DESCRIPTION:
Jewish folklore is extraordinarily rich and varied. From folktales to riddles, from legends about the exalted rabbis to irreverent jokes, folklore is central to the Jewish way of life. This course will trace the extent to which oral elements appear in traditional Jewish literary texts such as the Bible; read and discuss folktales, and examine minor genres such as proverbs, riddles and jokes. Topics will include the supernatural beings of Jewish folklore – dybbucks, seductive female demons, and golems. Students will acquire theoretical tools with which to analyze folklore (Jewish or otherwise), read stories, watch movies, and collect samples of folklore from informants.

JUSTIFICATION:
State reason for request in detail. This course is a core content course (proposed also as a Principal Course) in Jewish Studies, which will count for the Jewish Studies minor and is intended to count towards the future major in Jewish Studies.

3. Correction to previously approved deletion of a course

CHANGE: DELETE COURSE

HA 511  THE CELTS  3 H

A multidisciplinary study of over 2000 years of early European History (1200B.C-800A.D.) combining the approach of archaeology and anthropology, art history, and linguistics. Emphasis will be on the most important aspects of the growth and development of the arts, cultures, and languages of these Pan-European Peoples from their west-central European origins to their maximum expansion and their confrontation with Rome, The Anglo-Saxons, and the Franks. The survival of Celtic culture in the "Celtic fringe" of Western Europe and the "Celtic Revival" in the 19th and 20th centuries will be considered at the end of the semester. (Same as ANTH 511)

This is a correction to a previous approval to delete the History of Art course entitled "The Celts". The course number was erroneously submitted as HA 551, and appeared as such throughout the approval process. (although the course is still listed as "same as ANTH 511", ANTH 511 was previously deleted.)
