He invited any interested faculty to attend a CUSA meeting.

DEAN’S OFFICE REPORT Associate Dean Goldstein met with Dean Anderson and Chris Haufler to obtain more clarity on the ongoing process for the general education requirements.

He asked for clarification on how many courses will be required in each of the core goal areas by the university and what we could require for a BA degree in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

- Build core skills of critical thinking and quantitative literacy - 1 in 1, or 1 in each of the areas required by the university;
- Strengthen written and oral communication - 3 courses;
- Develop a background of knowledge across fundamental areas of study (breadth) - 3-4 courses;
- Respect human diversity and expand cultural understanding and global awareness - 2 courses;
- Practice social responsibility and demonstrate ethical behavior - 1-2 courses;
- Gain the ability to integrate knowledge across and think creatively - 1 course.

The core requirements add up to 42 or 45 hours. They are still discussing social responsibility to determine if it should be 1 or 2 courses so the total hours may be more.

C. ACADEMIC STANDARDS
NEW BUSINESS Standing discussion of general education requirements.
The foreign language survey results were distributed to the committee for discussion. What are our expectations of someone that graduates with a BA? Should they be able to read another language, should they be able to speak another language, write in another language? As a committee, what are we striving to achieve with our foreign language requirement?

The committee also discussed a comparisons report of peer institutions, which included; North Carolina-Chapel Hill, University of Virginia, University of Florida, Michigan State University, The University of Iowa, University of Colorado-Boulder, Indiana University, University of Missouri-Columbia, University of Oregon and SUNY-Buffalo. Most of our peer institutions included foreign language requirements for admission. A few schools strongly encouraged students to have foreign language proficiency for admission and explained that they would be at an extreme disadvantage if they did not have foreign language proficiency.

The committee felt it was important to require minimum academic standards before students are admitted. The committee asked that Ms. Bridget Bradley cull data to try to determine the foreign language proficiency of incoming freshman and transfer students have when admitted to the University of Kansas.

A lengthy discussion ensued and many options were discussed.

An informal consensus/tentative proposal was to propose a 3 semester requirement with the 4th level course fulfilling the breadth of knowledge. Several options and different combinations were discussed, including:

- 4th semester foreign language requirement
- Combination foreign language/world culture
- Combination foreign language/international experience using the last semester to build international experience
- 4 semester of foreign language or 3 semesters and student abroad experience

The meeting was adjourned at 12:32 p.m.
