Effective Term
Spring 2017

Catalog Description
This course addresses the challenges for students engaged in research in an interdisciplinary and international context. The course will take issues for research and place them within the structure of a research design process, including formulation of a general question, the appropriation of theory, the grounding of a literature review, and the positing of a testable research question or hypothesis. Students will also be exposed to research methodologies and how these manifest themselves through the logic of the disciplines—such as anthropology, sociology, geography, political science, history and literature. With a final thesis project design in mind, students will be expected to be able to utilize the research tools of accessing secondary analytical data, archival research, SPSS, ArcView and methods such as survey construction, implementation, and analysis, interviews, content analysis, discourse analysis, case study, and GIS.

Prerequisites
GIST 701 or consent of instructor.

Title: Studying Modern Islam
Transcript Title: Studying Modern Islam
Effective Term: Spring 2017

Catalog Description: An in-depth introduction to the issues involved in the academic study of modern Islam. In this class students will investigate the ideas, assumptions and historical circumstances that gave rise to and continue to influence scholarly approaches to Islam. Topics may include the Orientalism, gender studies, colonialism, secularism, Islamism and the concept of modernity. Students will apply what they learn to the study of Islam in contemporary Egypt.
